CLASS 1332 Elementary Sanskrit II
351-267 Class #: 5703 4 credits.  MTRF 11:15-12:05 Ruppel, A.  Room GSH 124
Prerequisite: CLASS 1331. Sanskrit /Linguistics 1131 or equivalent.
An introduction to the essentials of Sanskrit grammar. Designed to enable the student to read as quickly as possible.

CLASS 1450 Ancient Egyptian: Middle Egyptian Hieroglyphs I 358-372 Class #: 16434 4 credits.  TR 2:55-4:10 Barrett, C.  Room LNC 117
For over two thousand years, from the Middle Kingdom (ca. 2100 BCE) into the Roman era, Egyptian monuments were inscribed with hieroglyphs of the Middle Egyptian writing system. In this first of three courses in Ancient Egyptian, students are introduced to the script, phonetics and structure of this classic phase of ancient Egyptian writing. Working with excerpts from actual ancient Egyptian texts, students will learn to use a hieroglyphic sign list and dictionary, and transiterate hieroglyphs into a standardized form that facilitates study of the language’s grammar and syntax. In this first course students will translate nominal, adjectival, and adverbial sentences from Egyptian into English and vice versa, and be introduced to the verbal system, building an Egyptian vocabulary in the process. Having passed this course, students will be prepared for the more advanced verbal forms and more complete texts studied in the second course, Ancient Egyptian II.

CLASS 1531 FWS: Greek Myth
361-732 Class #: 16768 3 credits.  TR 8:40-9:55 GSH 181 - Theodore Harwood
The course will focus on the stories about the gods and heroes of the Greeks as they appear in the works of ancient Greek literature. We will read a selection from Greek authors, inquiring into the relationship between myths and cultural, religious, and political realia of the society in which they were shaped and perpetuated. Alongside the primary texts, we will read a number of recent scholarly works on the subject. We will start by discussing myths in general terms (theories, basic concepts) and will proceed toward the analysis of individual stories and cycles. This fascinating material will serve as a vehicle for improving your written communication skills. Assignments will include preparatory writing and six essays focusing on our readings and discussions in class.
Classes:
SEM 101 (Class #16768) - TR 8:40-9:55, GSH 181 - Theodore Harwood
SEM 102 (Class #16769) - TR 10:10-11:25, LNC 117 - David Mankin

CLASS 2612 The Roman Experience
352-309 Class #: 16430 3 credits.  MWF 1:25-2:15 Mankin, D.  Room GSH G76
An introduction to the civilization of the Romans as expressed in their literature, religion, and social and political institutions.

CLASS 2640 Introduction to Ancient Medicine
364-584 Class #: 8086 3 credits.  MW 12:20-1:10 Roby, C.  Room GSH G64
An introduction to the origins and development of Western medicine in ancient Greece and Rome. We will read a variety of sources on the ancient theory and practice of medicine, including pre-Hippocratic works, the Hippocratic corpus, and the prolific and opinionated Galen. These texts will be complemented by secondary sources which will put them in scientific and social context, as well as by visual and material evidence. Questions to be considered will include the treatment of women, the relationship between medicine and magic, the evolving state of the arts of anatomy and physiology, and rival schools of thought about the right way to acquire medical knowledge. All readings will be in English. Discussion Sections:
DIS 201 (Class #8087) - F 9:05-9:55, GSH 283 - Evan Ward

Empires of the Mediterranean World

This course studies the histories and archaeologies of the Persian, Macedonian and Roman Empires, while also educating students on the broader constraints of ancient Mediterranean geography, communication and technology that conditioned the growth and development of these empires. We will begin in the 6th century BCE and cover nearly a millennium of ancient Mediterranean history. In lecture, special attention will be given to ancient sources of evidence including texts, epigraphs, monuments and other archaeological remains.

The Classical World in 24 Objects

Enrollment in section required.

This course is an overview of the art and archaeology of Greek and Roman world, covering the sculpture, vase paintings, and architecture of the ancient Greeks from the Geometric period through the Hellenistic, and the art of the Romans from the early Republic to the time of Constantine the Great.

Sections:
DIS 201 (Class #16390)- R 1:25-2:15, GSH G19 - Liana Brent
DIS 202 (Class #16391)- F 11:15-12:05, GSH G19 - Liana Brent

Classical Tradition

To different audiences and at different times, “the Greeks” have represented everything from an idealized Golden Age to political and economic collapse. This course examines changing perceptions of Greeks by outsiders, starting in antiquity and going into the present day. We will examine what the idea of the “Hellene” has meant, both in the Mediterranean and beyond, to a range of groups (ancient and modern) who would not necessarily define themselves as “Hellenes.” From antiquity, we will examine a wide range of sources in which non-Greeks describe or depict Greeks – including Hittite references to Mycenaeans; Persian artistic representations of Greek hoplites; Egyptian descriptions of Alexander the Great; the edicts of an Indian king who attempted to convert Greeks to Buddhism; Greek-style art and architecture in the ancient Sudan; lurid Roman accounts of Hellenistic debauchery; and much more. We will then progress historically from Late Antiquity to the present day, investigating the ways in which popular conceptions of “Hellenes” and “Hellenism” have both reflected and helped to shape their changing social and political contexts. Among other things, we will examine the use of antiquity as both a model and a cautionary tale for modern societies; medieval Arabic adaptations of Greek philosophy; the role of the Classical past in the 19th-century Greek independence movement; ongoing archaeological repatriation controversies, and the question of “who owns the past”; and American and European responses to the contemporary Greek economic crisis. Ultimately, we will conclude by examining our own participation in this ongoing project of representation; who are the “Hellenes” going to be for us, and why?

Seminar in Vedic Philology

Two years of Sanskrit and some experience in reading Vedic or permission of Instructor.

A seminar for intensive reading of Vedic texts, primarily the Rig Veda. Attention will be given to the study of Vedic ritual and mythology, and to the later commentarial and performance traditions. Students will be familiarized with the various methods, primarily philological, necessary for the competent reading of Vedic texts.

Independent Study in Sanskrit, Undergraduate Level

Permission of DUS, in special circumstances only.

Up to 4 credits.

This course studies the continuities and changes in the figure of the holy man in the ancient world, from the sages of classical antiquity to the saints of early Christianity. We will consider, among others: Pythagoras, Socrates, Diogenes the Cynic, Appollonius of Tyana, Jesus, the Apostles, Christian martyrs, Antony, Martin of Tours, Symeon Stylites, Proclus. Readings will include contemporary primary works as well as modern historiography.

CLASS 4752/7752  Problems in Byzantine Art  X-List:  ARTH 4351/6351 VISST 4351/6351
Class #:  9055/90  4 credits.  R 2:30-4:25  Anderson, B.  Room GSJ G20
Topic for spring 2014: Hagia Sophia
The “Church of Holy Wisdom,” cathedral of Constantinople, was built anew under the Byzantine Emperor Justinian and dedicated in 537. The structure, which still stands at the heart of Istanbul, was the crowning glory of ancient architecture, a marvel of the engineer’s art and a space of indescribable beauty. Byzantines believed that an angel had revealed its design, and the conversion of the Russians to Christianity was attributed to the awe that it inspired. Following the Ottoman conquest, the church became a mosque, and by the seventeenth century it was said that the Prophet himself had aided in the construction of its dome. A museum since 1934, today the Hagia Sophia continues to be an object of desire and center of conflict. We will consider its place in the history of ancient architecture, its central role in Orthodox liturgy and Byzantine ceremonial, its significance for Ottoman culture and Muslim practice, its entry into the modern canon of masterpieces of world architecture, and the very current controversies surrounding its proper function.

CLASS 7682  Topics in Ancient History  X-List:  HIST 6300/NES 6642/JWST 6642
357-654  Class #:  8746  4 credits.  F 1:25-4:25  Rebillard, E.  Room GSH 124
Topic: Death and Burial in the Roman World, 1st c. BCE-5th c. CE.
We will adopt an interdisciplinary approach to the topic and consider all sorts of evidence from literary and philosophical texts (Consolations, Virgil Eneid 6 and its commentary by Servius) to corpse taphonomy and archaeology of ritual. Here is a range of possible topics: funerals, imagines, afterlife, grief/consolation, grave-goods, taphonomy, selection of monuments, epitaphs, pauper burial, cremation, ‘deviant’ burial, etc.

Prerequisites: LATIN 1202, 1204, or placement by departmental exam.
Satisfies Option 2. Introduces students to reading a literary Latin text (Ovid, Ars Amatoria I). The course covers complex syntax and reviews the grammar presented in LATIN 1202 or 1204.

LATIN 2206  Roman Letters  X-List:
357-641  Class #:  16212  3  credits.  MWF  10:10-11:00  Fontaine, M.  Room GSH 122
Prerequisites: LATIN 1205 or grade of A-or above in LATIN 1202, 1204, or placement by departmental exam.
This course offers students a close reading of selected poems of C. Valerius Catullus. Special attention will be given to the polymeric and longer poems, but we will also read a number of the epigrams. Among other topics, discussion will focus on the issues of imagery, language, culture, and poetic persona in the Late Republic.

LATIN 3204  Roman Prose  X-List:
353-621  Class #:  16213  4  credits.  MW  2:55-4:10  Roby, C.  Room GSH 122
Satisfies Option 1. Prerequisite: One term of 2000 level Latin or permission of instructor Apuleius’s Metamorphoses (also known as The Golden Ass) follows the adventures of Lucius, a man who is magically transformed into a donkey and must experience a variety of travels and travails before he can be restored to human form. This book is many things: a raucous and risqué adventure tale, a narrative of religious conversion, even a mystery story. Is it a novel? That’s a question we’ll seek to answer throughout the semester, using modern novels and scholarship to investigate what the novel really is. We’ll also discuss the cultural context of this book and its North African author, who was himself accused of practicing magic!

LATIN 3286  Independent Study in Latin, Undergraduate Level  X-List:

359-568  Class #:  Below  4  credits.  F  1:25-4:25  Hicks, A.  Room GSH G19
Topic: High Medieval Latin Poetics.
This seminar will explore genres, forms, and theories of Medieval Latin poetry in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Topics include historical epic, satire, didactic verse, rhymed rhytmic verse, the ars versificandi, and modern critical approaches to Medieval Latin poetics (Faral, Raby, Norberg, Zumthor, Leupin, Tilliette, et al.). A solid foundation in Latin grammar and morphology is a prerequisite for the course, and students in doubt about their readiness should consult with the instructor.
